Dear Ms. Stanczack:

I am responding to your ad for a copy editor on the Editor & Publisher website.

I was copy editor for the alternative weekly, The Welcomat, (which today is known as Philadelphia Weekly) for over five years, handling all editorial copy. In addition to this, I was also the paper's popular music critic for over eleven years as well as production manager, music editor and associate editor.

As production manager, I did the layout for the news section of the newspaper, and saw that the paper reached the printer on time. I did both manual layout and layout in Quark.

Enclosed is my resume and samples of my writing which is mostly music related.

I did compose headlines for the paper though at this point I am hard-pressed to remember which ones. Looking over old issues of the paper, I did not find headlines I felt suitable for a daily, and please keep in mind the Welcomat, while being Philadelphia's largest weekly was a unique venture. However I am confident the articles I am enclosing will show you that I can write.

Thank you for your consideration, I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,

Peter Brown
